President's Letter

Bro. Thomas J. Cleary, S.M. '81

Dear
Chaminade
Family,

I often begin these letters with an email or an interaction I recently had with an alumnus or with a parent. I am always re-invigorated when I hear from them, and it very often defines the “why” of what we do each day at Chaminade.

A few weeks ago, I wrote to Chaminade alumni in California who were facing the devastating wildfires. It was a simple note offering our prayers for their safety and any help we could provide. I was amazed by how many responses I received. These are just some of them:

- Thank you for your thoughtfulness...your prayers are greatly appreciated.
- Thank you for this kind note...we truly appreciate your prayers and support.
- I am so totally blown away that you have taken the time from your duties in Mineola to remember and reach out to us in California.
- Thank you...Just want you to know that your email was very thoughtful and very much appreciated.

Their email responses reminded me of two things:

FIRST, that no matter how far apart we may be, we are always a part of the Chaminade Family.

As one of eight children, I know a few things about large families! We may not always see eye-to-eye on everything, but we will always have one another's backs. This is just as true when our alumni face wildfires as when they face a more personal crisis. The true mark of a family is how we rally around each other in times of crisis, not just how we celebrate each other in times of accomplishment. I see this played out regularly with the many different drives and volunteer programs our students support and work with each year.

SECOND, that words matter and have real power.

Words matter...use them well, be clear with what you want to say, and be respectful. Our Catholic faith is such an important part of what we do here at Chaminade that it is impossible not to realize how powerful our words, especially when raised in prayer to the Word, can be. When said or written with genuine feeling, words can change the world.

The Chaminade News embodies the best of both of those lessons. It is sent with a real desire to keep you all involved with a place that has played, and continues to play, such an important role in all of our lives. As you read through this edition, you will see how much has changed while remaining true to a set of ideals and a mission 90 years in the making.

Fortes in Unitate,

Giving Them the Business

New Space for Bloomberg Financial Lab

When Bro. Thomas Cleary, S.M. '81 first approached Mrs. Tina Carlstrom about teaching a course on the Bloomberg Terminal, she was confused. At the time, Chaminade did not have a single terminal to use in the course. Now, with a brand new, state-of-the-art space, home to 20 terminals and two full-time faculty members, Chaminade has a truly one-of-a-kind Financial Literacy program.

"As a parent at the time, I attended the Chaminade Christmas party where Bro. Tom gave his 'State of the Union' address. When he said that Chaminade would soon be getting several Bloomberg terminals, I couldn't believe it. That was the beginning of our vision," Mrs. Carlstrom recalled.

Realizing the Vision

Five years later, the Bloomberg Financial Lab has outgrown its original space in the library and moved into a more modern, purpose-designed space. It features tiered seating and the same tools that one would expect to find on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange or any major financial institution. A stock ticker even wraps around the wall displaying the Standard & Poor 100. It gives Flyers a taste of the fast-paced world of finance.

"The creation of the new Dolan Family Science, Technology, and Research Center freed up some of the labs in the main building, so we jumped on the opportunity to move upstairs and create this awesome space. The move is already paying dividends; the students are more engaged than ever!" explained Mrs. Carlstrom.

These terminals and the hiring of experienced faculty members, Mrs. Carlstrom and Mr. Kevin St. Pierre '85 (below), have positioned Chaminade to build a financial literacy program that is unique among American high schools. Here at Chaminade, all juniors and seniors are provided a firm foundation in business, high finance, and personal finance through our Financial Literacy course. This program is designed not only to prepare students for a possible future in finance and business but also life as a 21st-century adult and parent.

Flyers are given the opportunity to study equity and fixed income markets, business operations, analysis of financial statements, interest rates, currencies, and the use of the Bloomberg Terminal as a tool to deepen the understanding of these topics. In this way, our Financial Literacy course does more than prepare students for a future in business and banking. It also helps students understand essential life skills, such as financing college costs, applying for a mortgage, planning for retirement, and even avoiding credit card debt.

"We want them to have all of the financial tools they will need when they graduate from Chaminade," offered Mr. St. Pierre. "That way, when they head off to college, and then out into the real world, they are prepared to make smart financial decisions for themselves and for their families - spending smartly, buying a house, saving for retirement, raising a family, and financing their own children's education. What they learn here will help them confidently navigate what can seem like overwhelming financial decisions."

A Truly Chaminade Experience

This unparalleled initiative complements Chaminade's long-standing commitment to educating the whole person. Just as the lessons learned in the "traditional" core classes translate across disciplines, skills learned in our Financial Literacy course – critical thinking, analysis, and creativity – can easily be applied to science, mathematics, social studies, and even religion.

In addition to the classes offered to current juniors and seniors, Chaminade sponsors summer Financial Literacy workshops and camps for middle school students from across Long Island and Queens. The lab is also open to any and all alumni who want to use the terminals. Any senior who is interested can earn a certification in the Bloomberg Terminal, an impressive credential for a budding business student.

It is safe to say that, whether it is paying dividends or helping juniors and seniors understand dividends, the new Bloomberg Financial Lab is a game changer.

Young Flyers

Soaring into the Business World

Four young alumni take on the challenges of running a business, all while still in college.

Tim Ahlstrom '18, sophomore at Sacred Heart University

Anthony Capellupo '16, senior at Fairfield University

Dan Hepworth '18, sophomore at Duke University

Ryan O'Connor '19, freshman at the University of Michigan

Starting your own business can be a daunting task at any age, but four Chaminade alumni are taking on this challenge – all while still navigating college.

Juggling a growing business while studying for exams and writing papers has become second nature for Tim Ahlstrom '18, Anthony Capellupo '16, Dan Hepworth '18, and Ryan O'Connor '19. They now realize the lessons they learned at Chaminade – time and relationship management, personal accountability, and the benefits of a broad education – have served them well as they navigate their new industries.

Chaminade Prep

"Thinking back to comps...you can't study for everything in one night. You need to prioritize your time," remembered Dan Hepworth '18, the founder of The Massapequa

Tutor, a growing company familiar to many Chaminade students who have worked as a tutor or utilized their test-preparation services.

For Dan, "taking advantage of the resources at your disposal, doing the right thing at the right time because it is the right thing to do, having excellent time management skills, and the ability to prioritize important tasks" are just a few of the vital skills that he learned during his time at Chaminade. He is not alone when it comes to sharing an appreciation for his Chaminade preparation.

"I feel that Chaminade prepared me extremely well," offered Ryan O'Connor '19, the founder of an app development business that can count Chaminade as one of its customers. "Building up the persistence to push through challenging and time-consuming work has allowed me to move efficiently through my weekly work and have time to work on expanding my business."

Anthony Capellupo '16 recalls his time in high school fondly. "During all four years at Chaminade, I played in the school's pep band. I was lucky enough to get to know Mr. Cassidy very well. We used to share our storied tales of chasing blitzing bluefish in the Western Sound or pursuing Blackfish on the south shore. Our daily conversations grew my affinity for the water even more."

It was this love of the water, and the dream of a career beyond an office window, that led Anthony to create "Out There Apparel," a lifestyle brand with a Long Island vibe.

"It is not a 9-5 job."

Perhaps it's something in the water at Chaminade, or maybe it's the high-quality students which the school has long attracted, but each of these young entrepreneurs demonstrates real maturity in recognizing the challenges that come along with his undertaking.

These young men have learned that while developing their ideas and managing a business is fun, it also involves a tremendous amount of hard work and dedication.

However, responsibility and hard work are familiar to any Flyer, and these four are shouldering their burdens well. They share an inner drive to succeed, solve problems, and innovate.

"It is not a 9-5 job," Dan said, "but a full-time responsibility. I have around 100 bosses: my clients whose expectations I try my hardest to exceed."

Tim Ahlstrom '18 agreed. He can attest that one of the ways their time at Chaminade has benefited these CEOs is by preparing them to work - and work hard.

He reinvented his company, KXNG New York, and has expanded its offerings from footwear to apparel. It was certainly no easy lift, but the end result was worth the effort.

"If you have the right vision and work ethic, nothing really can stop you."

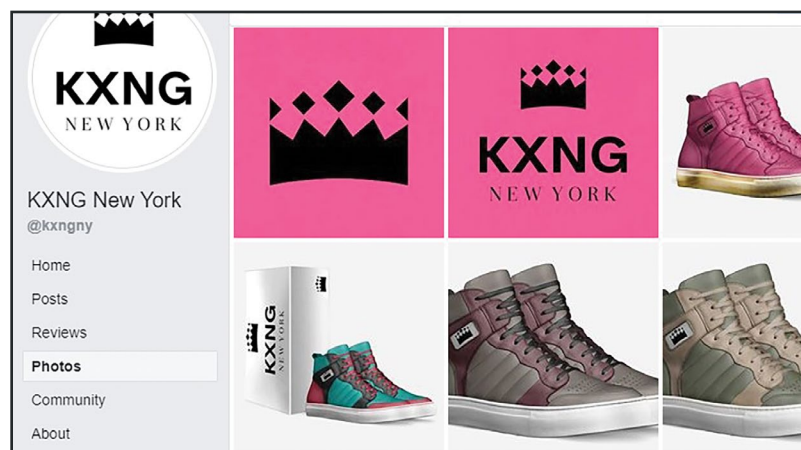

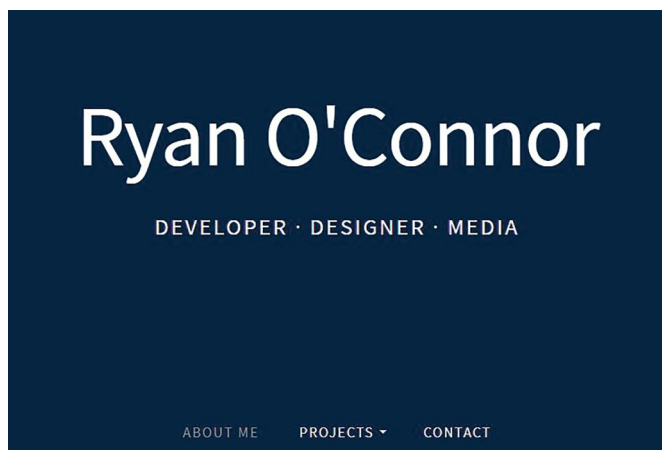

Back to Basics

With a course in Financial Literacy and access to a state-of-the-art suite of Bloomberg Terminals, every junior and senior is learning the basics of business and finance from Mr. Kevin St. Pierre '85 and Mrs. Tina Carlstrom who bring with them significant Wall Street experience.

With faculty and facilities like these, Tim, Anthony, Dan, and Ryan are only the first wave of Chaminade's world-changing entrepreneurs.

"Dream big. Think big. Believe big. Be bold, and take the leap," Anthony tells current students who are considering a career in entrepreneurship. "Believe in yourself, believe in your idea, and believe that God is there for you because you will need Him when the going gets tough."

Major League Talent

Logan Koester Makes the Jump from High School Champion to College Star

Logan Koester '19 found out that he had been drafted by the Philadelphia Phillies while driving with his father. It was a memory he will always cherish.

"I was in my car on a long drive home, but when we walked in the door, we had a special father-son moment," Logan recalled. "My reaction was one of pure excitement and utter joy, but it only took me a few days to realize that it was just the beginning."

High School Standout

During his time at Chaminade, Logan was a standout baseball player. He is only the sixth sophomore in school history to appear on the varsity baseball team and was a vital part of the 2019 championship team. After winning seven games and leading the Catholic League in home runs and RBIs, Logan was named Catholic League Pitcher of the Year and Long Island Player of the Year.

"Logan's success was instrumental in the Flyers winning the championship," according to Varsity Baseball Coach Mike Pienkos. "I have been the varsity head coach for 37 years, and I will remember Logan as one of the best players we have ever had."

A Draft Blueprint for Success

The Major League Baseball (MLB) draft differs greatly from any other major sport's draft. The MLB draft consists of 40 rounds, and more than one thousand potential major leaguers are chosen every year as all 30 teams look to boost their farm system and build a perennial World Series contender. Many choose not to pursue the often grueling life of a minor league player.

The Phillies selected Logan with their 32nd draft pick, number 960 overall. He was the only Long Island high school student taken in the 2019 draft, and he had a difficult decision to make – accept the Phillies' offer and play professionally or take his scholarship and attend George Washington University (GW), a Division I program in Washington, D.C.

"It was easily the toughest decision I had to make in my life up to this point."

Division I Athlete

With guidance from his family and Coach Pienkos, Logan ultimately chose to play for the GW Colonials.

"[There were] so many factors, such as a future after baseball, that led me toward a great education at GW."

GW, a member of the Atlantic 10 Conference, opens its season at Nicholls State in Louisiana and hosts Georgetown University for their home opener. Logan figures to play a prominent role as the Colonials play a schedule featuring many teams familiar to Chaminade alumni – Virginia Commonwealth University (VCU), William and Mary University, the University of Tennessee, and Fordham University, among others. It's safe to say that the Colonials of GW hit a home run with their new pitcher!

Logan led the Flyers to victory in the NSCHAA Varsity Baseball Championship.

Discerning Young Men

The Society of Mary Embraces New Ways to Foster a Timeless Commitment

From left, Bro. Andrew Santoriello, S.M. '07, Fr. Peter Heiskell, S.M. '86, Bro. Peter Sennert, S.M. '11, and Bro. Patrick Cahill, S.M. '11.

Everyone wants to find something that makes him happy, that fulfills him, and with which he can fall in love.

For many, this takes the form of a spouse and chosen career. For the Brothers and priests at Chaminade, this desire for fulfillment and happiness has led to the profession of the vows of poverty, chastity, obedience, and stability in the Society of Mary.

Frederick Buechner, the award-winning American writer and theologian, described a religious vocation as the space where the individual's "deep gladness and the world's deep hunger meet." Buechner's message resonates with Bro. Stephen Balletta, S.M. '74, Vocations Director for the Marianist Province of Meribah.

A Marianist Path to Happiness

"The Marianists showed me what it meant to be a part of a brotherhood in Christ," Bro. Stephen recalls more than 40 years after starting his own journey as a religious brother. “I saw their commitment to Catholic education; their excitement about learning; their passion for Jesus Christ, His Blessed Mother, and His Church; their palpable affection and camaraderie with one another and with the students; and their genuine joy of living the Gospel life.”

Bro. Stephen has been asking young men what makes them profoundly happy – just as being a Marianist brings him great joy – since 2010, when he became the Province’s vocations director. This role followed 34 years after professing his own first vows, an event he remembers well. All three of the novices who professed that day – all members of Chaminade’s Class of 1974 – are still members of the Society of Mary. “I challenge any profession class to match a perseverance rate like that,” Bro. Stephen says with considerable pride.

Recent years have seen renewed growth in the order. Since the summer of 2018, three new Marianists, Bro. Andrew Santoriello ’07, Bro. Peter Sennert ’11, and Bro. Patrick Cahill ’11, have professed Temporary Vows, and Bro. Thomas Terrill, n.S.M. ’10 has taken the habit as a Novice. One young man has also begun a discernment year with the Brothers.

“Bros. Peter, Andrew, Patrick, and Thomas and our discerner have brought a contagious energy and enthusiasm into the Brothers’ residence. Whenever I see them in chapel or hear them recounting the events of their day, I smile as I remember my own years as a young Marianist. And I know I’m not the only one who feels that way,” Bro. Stephen explains.

Marianist Discernment

Those interested in becoming Marianists follow a multi-year process that allows them time to grow in faith as they discern their vocation, all while supported by a community of professed Brothers and priests.

New times have called for new modes of outreach, though.

“We had previously targeted a population that would join immediately after high school,” Bro. Stephen notes. “Now we encourage prospective Marianists to complete college. Some join right after college, some later. For vocations directors, it means a longer journey of accompaniment, but it pays off in greater maturity, deeper personal insight, and a clearer commitment to religious life over and above all the other possibilities available to these young men.”

A prospective Marianist begins as an external discerner, having conversations with Bro. Stephen and other Marianists and joining them for prayer and meals on several occasions. This progresses to an internal discernment, during which time a vocation contact lives with the Community for periods at a time, eventually for an entire discernment year. Aspirancy advances the commitment, and the Novice dons the habit and is called “Brother” for the first time. A two-year Novitiate culminates in the profession of Temporary Vows and, three to six years later, Perpetual Vows.

This change in approach has clearly borne fruit, with five young men in various stages of religious formation.

“I think they’re happy, deeply happy,” offers Bro. Stephen, “and if they have discovered the joy of living the Gospel life, and if they are determined to share that joy with others, then they are well on their way to being the next generation of Marianists who will serve the Church on Long Island.”

Celebrating a 90-Year Legacy of Leadership

A New Way to Celebrate an Old Tradition

As every member of the Chaminade Family knows, ours is a big family! For almost 90 years, this family has shared a mission to provide an outstanding Catholic education to the young men of Long Island, so that they are prepared to go out into the world and be men of faith, family, and service. Chaminade's mission and values have left a lasting impact on our school, our communities, and our world while creating a legacy of excellence in Catholic education.

A New Tradition

In an effort to follow Blessed Chaminade's advice that "new times demand new methods," a new tradition will bring together the entire Chaminade Family on one night of celebration. This evening will combine two of our most cherished awards – the Founders Award and the Distinguished Alumnus Award – and see the first presentation of a new Spirit of Chaminade Award to a member of the faculty or staff who best exemplifies the Marianist spirit of service.

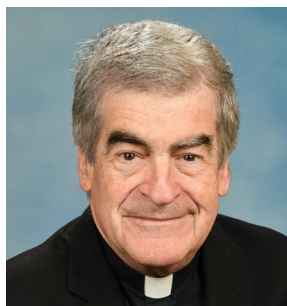

On April 2, 2020, we will gather as one Chaminade Family for this new Legacy of Leadership Dinner. A cocktail-style reception, the event will be held in the Activity-Athletic Center (AAC) and bring together all of the many groups who play such an important role in the life of Chaminade High School.

2020 Honorees

We are particularly proud to recognize such outstanding members of the Chaminade Family. This year's honorees are:

FR. GARRETT LONG, S.M. '62

Recognized as a Founder of Chaminade High School

A beloved mentor and teacher, Fr. Garrett served as Chaminade's chaplain for years before stepping back this year. He could be found extolling the virtues of Latin, showing a student the joy of woodworking, or offering a sympathetic ear and cherished advice. He has been a constant presence in the school for over 50 years and is beloved by generations of Flyers.

MR. RANDY DUDICK

Recognized as a Founder of Chaminade High School

Randy is one of the first people to arrive at school each morning. Walking the halls, he ensures that each classroom is prepared for the school day. His quiet leadership provides a sense of security that our school building will be well-maintained and pristine. He is instantly recognizable to students, staff, and alumni alike, and his dedication has kept Chaminade running smoothly for over 25 years.

MR. KEVIN CONWAY '76

Recognized as a Distinguished Alumnus of Chaminade High School

Kevin is the Vice Chairman at Clayton Dubilier and Rice (CD&R), a leading global private equity firm known for blending investment skills with operating capabilities to build great businesses. Kevin joined CD&R in 1994 and serves as Chairman of the Investment Committee and member of the Management Committee. He served as Managing Partner of the firm from 2004 to 2016. Prior to joining CD&R, Kevin was a senior member of the Mergers and Acquisitions Department and Chief of Staff of the Investment Banking Division at Goldman Sachs & Co. After graduating magna cum laude with a degree in economics and political science at Amherst College, Kevin earned a J.D. and an M.B.A. from Columbia University.

Kevin has been selected by the Distinguished Alumnus Committee as he exemplifies the ideals of the Chaminade Man in his family, community, and professional endeavors.

Parents Club Events

Monday, August 26, was a day to remember for all members of the Class of 2023 and their parents. The students, as well as their parents, join a new family when they begin at Chaminade. The 3C SOCIAL provides a welcome to the newest members of the Parents Club. While the new freshmen visited their homerooms and received iPads and gym uniforms, parents met with administrators and learned more about the academic program. After the presentation, students and parents joined together in the Activity-Athletic Center (AAC) for refreshments.

On September 21, current Chaminade parents enjoyed an afternoon together in the AAC for the annual FALL COCKTAIL PARTY. This event provides parents with a chance to get to know each other and their sons' teachers.

On October 17, the PARENTS CLUB LUNCHEON was held at the Inn at New Hyde Park. A more formal affair, the luncheon included remarks by Chaminade President Bro. Thomas J. Cleary, S.M. '81 and the chance to win some highly-desirable raffle prizes.

On December 7, the CHRISTMAS COCKTAIL PARTY closed out the Fall calendar for the Parents Club. A festive gathering, parents could meet many of Chaminade's teachers and staff and celebrate the holiday season. One lucky set of parents even left with a half-tuition prize!

From left, Parents Club Presidents John and Darcy Tabako P'20,'22 and Chairs of the Parents Club Board of Directors Kirsten and Larry Muccini P'19,'20,'22.

Chaminade moms enjoy time together at the Parents Club Luncheon at the Inn at New Hyde Park.

CAPA Events

The CAPA WELCOME SOCIAL is always a highly-anticipated event to begin the school year. On September 7, following a long-standing tradition, a photo of the Class of 2019 was revealed in the Courtyard Café. This unveiling capped the afternoon's welcome to the Chaminade

Hon. Patti Ann McDonald

Alumni Parents Association (CAPA).

A BOAT CRUISE around Manhattan on October 26 provided CAPA members the chance to view the legendary New York skyline and enjoy the company of fellow alumni parents

Former Malverne, NY Mayor, Hon. Patti Ann McDonald (left), served as the keynote speaker at the annual COMMUNION BREAKFAST on November 3. Mayor McDonald is the widow of the late New York Police Department Detective Steven McDonald. The couple's grace in the face of so many challenges has been well-documented and continues to serve as an inspiration to all.
